

Timor-Leste: Australian occupier reluctant to provide crucial information!

by finch Tuesday, Apr 22 2008, 9:22pm

international / imperialism / commentary

Jose Ramos-Horta, President of Timor-Leste, has formally requested the bank and phone records of assassinated rebel leader, Alfredo Reinado, which are currently held by Australian authorities. But that information has so far been withheld from the president of Timor-Leste! In other words, Australian occupiers refuse to furnish information to the president of the occupied nation; an 'action' which certainly removes all doubts regarding East Timor's sovereignty and independence. A suspicious situation to say the least!

Bureaucratic procedure/red-tape does not 'cut it' between heads of state so why is Australia stalling for time? Perhaps to protect some very important arses; we wouldn't want to compromise certain individuals who were involved in the removal of the previous nationalist leader, Mari Alkatiri, from power. It is no secret Alkatiri refused to enslave his tiny but potentially rich nation to western oil interests via World Bank economic slavery loans - we have seen it all before in Africa, the Indian sub-continent and Latin America!

The Transnational oil companies were straining at the bit to exploit the oil and gas reserves of this El Dorado of the South Pacific so Alkatiri had to go - he was a bloody 'communist obstructionist' anyway, according to the Australian trained, Major Reinado!

However, it was Alkatiri's opposition to the 80-20 oil profit arrangement - in Australia's favour -- that instigated his removal from power. How dare this little darkie demand the major portion of the nation's wealth remain with the people and the nation -- the hide of this little darkie! The then internationally embarrassed Australian Foreign minister, Alexander Downer, was forced to enter into a new fairer arrangement regarding oil deals with the tiny new state.

It should not be forgotten that former president of the World Bank, Paul 'PNAC' Wolfowitz, was also given his marching orders by that 'insolent little darkie,' Alkatiri. It was clear Alkatiri had to go and his removal from power was duly effected by the Australian trained, Alfredo Reinado; a classic pawn of western interests!

The role of Xanana Gusmao should not be forgotten, he is the West's representative in the current Timorese puppet government and was a principal player in the removal of Alkatiri - but that is no secret these days. However, his role in the recent assassination of Reinado and the wounding of Ramos-Horta is currently under investigation. A rope would be a fitting end for this brazen traitor and Western lackey; however, Nobel Laureate Ramos-Horta, is careful to follow due process, as the stakes are high and there is no room for error.

Meanwhile China waits patiently in the background ready to assist at a moment's notice! China's non-interventionist foreign policy is certainly preferable to the West's overt meddling!

Australia has a history of monumental failures and disasters and it would not be surprising to see it lose everything in the region. We are all reminded of Aussie 'expertise' on ANZAC (military disaster) day and the recently discovered wreck of HMAS Sydney, which confirms the Captain disregarded every rule of naval engagement to be sunk with all 645 hands by a vastly inferior German raider. The Sydney has entered history as the single worst naval disaster of WWII – ‘I love a sunburnt bunch of fuckwits and incompetent morons!’ Should we mention the more recent Howard government $25 billion fixed/flat-rate NorthWest shelf gas deal with China – ‘done like a dinner,’ Aussie, you tragic case!

But to return to the story. Australia has new leadership, a ‘bells and whistles’ but no substance phoney PM, Kevin ‘show pony’ Rudd and a new Foreign Minister, Stephen ‘kneepads’ Smith. Neither of these men are equipped with the means to deal effectively with the situation – so let’s have the (now tampered with) records; we are still able to expose inept efforts to hide the culpable and criminally liable. The optimum scenario would be a total expose, so give it your best shot, you bungling Aussie buffoons!

In the present circumstances, business with the non-interventionist Chinese would be preferable to the intrigues, bungles and murders of Australian and U.S. interests!

[Slowly but surely, Jose!]

Viva, Timor-Leste!

Cleaves Alternative News. <http://cleaves.lingama.net/news/story-1022.html>