No sooner had the Bilderberg group completed its latest 'social gathering' than their mass media informs us that 'donors' will pledge $15 billion to 'rebuild' Afghanistan - morons, you really have missed the point! Afghans are not so stupid; they are acutely aware of the forces that destroyed their nation and continue to kill their children! Are U.S. and NATO idiots finally learning what Alexander, British Imperialists and Russia all learnt the hard way - nobody takes Afghanistan on the ground!

Well, gentlemen, history also informs us the failing Roman Empire attempted to buy its enemies. Barbarians and warlords at the time took the gold, sure, but continued to prevail against Rome until the Empire collapsed. Are the financial wizards of the Bilderberg group so stupid in matters other than the financial? It would seem so!

It may signal the end of a group that fails to see the nose on its banker's face. Money is becoming irrelevant, gentlemen, a billion is small change nowadays; a situation you created with your insatiable greed!

How do you propose to buy people dedicated to your destruction? Tell it to the holocaust victims in Iraq then to the Afghans. Perhaps the latest Bilderberg discussions should have revolved around how divorced from reality current world leaders, financial wizards, media moguls and captains of industry are! It's running away from you gentlemen, and I ought to know!

Have YOU been told today? Certain cultures have honour codes which are beyond the reach of money and outside interference.

A thief stole a ring, which had been in the family for three generations; his testicles and penis were removed and shoved into his mouth, which was then taped tight. The thief slowly choked to death on his own genitals -- a fitting penalty for anyone who would affront the honour of family, clan and nation.

Furthermore, "I don't care too much for money, money can't buy me love ..." -- Lennon and McCartney.
