

Shifting power and US delusions

The USA is broke - that's the truth, almost all the money and energy resources of the world are in ASIA, Africa and the Middle East, respectively. That is why Bush is running around the world attempting to gain support. The USA is out of the picture in more ways than one. Eight years of misguided (deplorable) foreign policy and military aggression have lost it the little support it once had. The future for the US is almost cast in stone - FAILURE at every turn! The last area of US superiority is the military and history dictates that ALL would-be empire nations that attempted to force the issue were destroyed by other less powerful but united in purpose nations!

Faced with current reality it really doesn't matter who wins the US presidency the course has been set by the 'bridge-burning' tactics and horrid aggression of the current Bush/Cheney administration.

Lunatic (failed) policies such as PNAC and militaristic expansionism, once pursued to the extent they have are almost impossible to reverse. It would be wise for the FREE WORLD to prepare strategies to destroy the rogue, which has no other alternative but continued raw aggression. America has proven it could care less for the mayhem it inflicts on innocents -- the first holocaust of the 21st century is a MATTER OF FACT in Iraq!

Regardless of the now transparent and feeble attempts of US media to justify RAW AGGRESSION the free world will have none of it!

The greatest potential assault on the USA could come from expat Serbs who are European and therefore impossible to profile. They are already embedded in large numbers in the US and other allied nations. Furthermore, they are extremely capable and populate many high-level positions in their adopted countries. They are expert fighters and are known to take the battle to the 'pillow of the enemy.' Surviving a thousand years of victimisation and attempted eradication has created a formidable people in more ways than one.

I state the above for the reason that NATO and the US have recently, and FOOLISHLY, ignored Russia and the UN Security council regarding decisions relating to Kosovo. Russia may decide to 'enable' the Serbs, who are more than willing and extremely able to deliver a monumental blow to the pillow of the enemy. It's just too easy; be advised, we are standing right next to you!

How fuckin' dare you attempt to steal Kosovo, you murdering thieves! Keep your eyes on the sky you dumb fucks. You have no idea whatsoever!

If its WAR you crave, then we will be happy to oblige!
