The world, but particularly Australia, remembers the dark day when police-state tactics were introduced to the nation by the most incompetent government the state of NSW has ever known. The APEC summit was utilised to impose the most draconian policing/laws this peaceful nation has ever seen. The blackshirt State Premier, Morris 'il duce' Iemma today lost his case to impose additional draconian laws on the good people of NSW. Iemma hurriedly passed laws in parliament for the Pope's visit and WYD that effectively impinged on the civil liberties of citizens.

The laws related to the relative and subjective terms 'annoy' and 'inconvenience.' Any Australian or other citizen attending the World Youth Day could be fined up to $5500 for the charge of 'annoying' or 'inconveniencing' anyone at the WYD; notwithstanding the completely vague and subjective nature of the offences.

Today, the citizens protest group, The NoToPope Coalition, won their challenge in the Federal Court. Morris 'il duce' Iemma has been exposed as not only the most incompetent politician the state has ever known but the frustrated fascist he really is; the little Caesar thought it his prerogative to oppress the people whenever he saw fit - hail Caesar!

We hope today's decision by the Federal Court sends a message to the USA whose judiciary has been under siege from exactly the same ultra-conservative forces. The Australian people have removed a conservative Federal Government and are now in the process of restoring traditional Oz values trashed by John Howard and his conservative ministers.

Today's decision is a victory for DEMOCRACY in Australia and hopefully around the WORLD!

Jail Bush, Blair and Howard.
