

Living in 'Interesting Times'

History unfolds in the present but is inextricably and dynamically intertwined with the 'past.' History is actually an interpretive/constructionist process in the present tense though it appears to relate to past events. The past does not exist; therefore history/everything surrenders itself to interpretation and 'reality' construction in the present; the only validity the past possess is that given it by the present!

Analysts and intellectuals are able to stand outside the swift current of popular culture/consciousness and observe the relationship dynamic between the past and present. This dynamic often forms patterns that reveal future trends. Reading the future is not as difficult as it seems, particularly reading national/cultural trends, government behaviour and international relations.

Expert analysts, with proven records, command huge sums forecasting for various government agencies, NGOs and Corporate concerns. However, no sector commands the services of the elites or best in their respective field. Strange as it may seem to the capitalist mindset, intellectuals are generally not mercenary in the least. They are driven principally by noble aspirations and by 'higher' human qualities; the overwhelming majority of intellectuals deplore brutish and criminal behaviour in all its forms. That reality poses huge problems for criminal elites that currently occupy seats of social power.

As is plain to see today, criminal cabals have made a mull of EVERYTHING. Confined to 5th and 3rd rate expertise the future for the cabals is assured.

Intellectual elites have formed subtle but very effective relationships outside mainstream culture. I am able to verify that experts in all fields have formed highly productive working relationships irrespective of racial, religious and national divides that would otherwise prohibit collaboration in their respective societies.

Small but extremely effective groups of people have always opposed malevolent forces. Since before recorded history people have opposed injustice. An unbroken tradition persists despite the many and various attempts of the violent, 'darker' forces to eradicate everything just, fair and good.

As each age passes the evil ones become less effective. For example, today we are faced with the thoroughly absurd proposition that a Guantanamo Bay detainee acquitted of all charges is required to remain in custody indefinitely! Idiomatic and insane actions that defy all logic do not seem to disturb the cretinous criminals in the White House.

With his own record of 750,000 dead Iraqi civilians, Bush today had the gall to chastise the Chinese government for ignoring human rights! I recall a Peter Seller's comedy and a question directed to a blind man, "are you blind?" Bush and his brigade of clowns, idiots and criminals are oblivious to the fact that their power base is eroded by their own stupid, criminal actions, brazen hypocrisy and insane 'logic.' They imagine that such mind-numbingly-moronic antics go unnoticed by others or are tolerated by the people -- not likely! Even inbred banjo-players find such convoluted 'logic' morally offensive and insulting.

It is simplicity itself to accelerate the many existing processes that undermine criminal governments -- with the leverage from a toothpick the largest unsound structure is toppled. However, extremely subtle and sophisticated strategies are continually deployed against malevolent forces; most of which remain undetected, which of course enhances their effectiveness. But such things are better left to those able to develop and deploy such 'things.'

Humans naturally gravitate to peace and harmony; the large amount of resources and energy required to transform a peaceful species into killers and accustom them to (continuous) stress and chaos, presents numerous problems and allows for many exploitable vulnerabilities.

One 'unit' of peace requires thousands of units of chaos to disturb it, hence malevolent forces suffer a huge disadvantage from the outset.

Believe nothing, trust your innate instincts and find rest at the centre of your being.

Never forget that destructive activity requires huge investments of energy/resources -- by comparison the desire for peace and harmony is innate and flows spontaneously! The future is therefore assured. PEACE will prevail and criminals that occupy the highest seats in the land will be held accountable for their crimes -- a low IQ provides no defence!

We require very little assistance; however, if you wish to participate, withdraw your support (recognition) from liars and frauds (Obama); psychopaths, murderers and idiots, Cheney/Bush/McCain, and their ilk around the globe. And do not underestimate the impact of this simple action.

We are ONE.

Peace.
