

Masters of America

by barra Saturday, Oct 25 2008, 10:40pm

international / social/political / commentary

For those who require hard evidence that Wall St. not Capitol Hill rule the USA look no further than the latest babbling of puppet president, dubya Bush. With the financial system and the global economy in tatters and after European and Asian leaders agreed to overhaul the international financial system; the star-spangled parrot (president) spouted his learned lines. [Believe it or not] Bush called on the world to "recommit" to the "free market" system that caused the global economic crisis/collapse in the first instance -- astounding! Bush made the remarks while standing in the cow paddy that was once the American economy. I can almost hear him asking his handlers if he 'did good;' you did just fine, George, you can go out and play now, you tubular bell!

You Betcha!

But all is not lost, Bankers and Financial elites are grooming a new president, however, some gnawing doubts remain. Fully cognisant of the fact they need a radical change in the White House their two runners are becoming slightly problematic. Bomb, bomb McCain is losing popularity for a number of reasons but he has proven himself LOYAL to the Bankers and ruling cabals.

Obama on the other hand has forced the elites to take him on board by SUCCESSFULLY utilising grass roots Internet methods of funding and campaigning - a formula that would have won him the presidency without the support of Wall St tycoons and media moguls!

The interesting factor -- not forgetting the last short-lived president to disregard the ruling executive - is that Obama has made all the right 'noises' after the executive tentatively embraced him. Obama's AIPAC performance and his re-commitment to Central Asian oil wars were signs of his compliance! However, such deft handling of flagrant policy inversions raises some doubts and creates consternation in elite circles; can this UNKNOWN black man be trusted?

Obama has demonstrated that he has a MIND (imagine that) of his own - not good - and that he is as sharp as a razor. Combine those qualities with his demonstrated pragmatism/'versatility' and the picture gets even worse for the very suspicious ruling cabals. There is no room for error as the world is in crisis and heads might roll if things go wrong - indeed gentlemen!

If Obama decides to double cross Wall St. and the Jewish lobby after he is elected -- a very simple manoeuvre for a smooth talking, charismatic con artist -- what then? Is there a bullet with his name on it or in these turbulent times an unfortunate lunatic assassin or 'tragic accident' just waiting to happen?

Enough doubt exists for elites to go with McCain, we know from bitter past experience what happens to a president who is capable of independent thought.

Think like ruling conservatives if you desire an accurate answer; reject uncertainty and go with loyalty. Air-head Palin for president after McCain's tragic heart attack, perfect! Computerised voting -- it's in the bag!

<http://www.smh.com.au/articles/2008/10/26/1224955820402.html>

Cleaves Alternative News. <http://cleaves.lingama.net/news/story-1289.html>