Malcolm Turnbull, conservative leader in the Oz parliament and former Goldman Sachs employee, 'somehow' managed to save his personal funds from a mortgage related investment just prior to the fund house freezing all public redemptions, perfect timing, Malcolm! As 'Gordon Gekko' stated so contemptuously in the movie, Wall Street, the "outsiders" (sheep) are at the mercy of "insiders" – how true!

Malcolm 'sachs' Turnbull

The private banking concern in the USA, deceptively known as the Federal Reserve, and its front man, another former Goldman Sachs man, Henry Paulson, graphically demonstrate the bankster-gangster elitist ethic -- fuck the poor dumb herd out there, it's our birthright to rule! Well, gentlemen, you can't rule if you're dead!

Most of the developed world is now aware that the world's financial system is run by loathsome, callous, heartless, scum of worse character than the most notorious and infamous gangsters! The 'jig,' as they say, is up gentlemen, and I wouldn't be in your shoes for all your filthy blood money.

Malcolm Turnbull fancies himself as Australia's future Prime Minister – who better to fill the role than a former Goldman Sachs man, ain't that right, Henry? Paulson recently demonstrated, in the US, how simple it was to hold the White House to ransom and force the puppet administration to do whatever the banksters wanted! Paulson has shown you the way, Malcolm. But Aussies are not so stupid!

Average Aussies identify with their leaders, and let's face it, Mal, few identify with elitist Merchant Banksters. Gathering a dedicated following in the media to tout "future Prime Minister," helps -- what was that slut journo's name again? Efforts to cultivate other influential persons may also be in vain, as today's public is far more difficult to deceive; a bright light now shines in the once dark backrooms of power. I recall the words of a social reformer who once stated that whispers/secrets would be shouted from the (digital) rooftops [and no amount of backbone filtering will prevent the people seeking and accessing knowledge, Minister Conroy.]

A new era is dawning, Mal; you, Rudd and the rest are REDUNDANT, 'dead men walking.' It is CLEAR to the public that you are (all) managed and controlled by Financial and Corporate elites - the most unrepresentative group in society!

But give it your best shot Malcolm; it is extremely helpful when you and your breed constantly utilise terms such as 'liberty, freedom and DEMOCRACY' - defined as, MAJORITY rule via REPRESENTATIVE government! Just how 'representative' do you think your $180 million is, Malcolm? You were right to say that people are hurting but you omitted to state they are hurting because of elitist financiers and former bankers like YOU!

[Aussies require one of their own in government and neither you nor Rudd come close.]

Australian cultural values that YOUR CONSERVATIVE party attempted to eradicate and replace with unfair, flawed and inequitable American values, have not died. Be assured the values upon which this nation was built will once again revive the Australian people and nation.
