

Failure to heed lessons from recent past spells doom for Obama

by budgie Tuesday, Dec 30 2008, 8:17pm

international / social/political / opinion/analysis

The 44th Presidency promises to be a watershed in American history but not for the reasons hoped for by vested and other interests – it is over gentlemen! Obama has already been accurately assessed by the people as a betrayer, turncoat, house slave and lackey.

Puppet clowns 'saving world!'

He lied his way into office, backtracked on almost all his promises, then adopted/continued the most disastrous policies of the previous Bush regime! The entire world is already screaming foul but the powers are not listening, they continue in their folly on a road to certain destruction – and we urge them along! Surely it is preferable to encourage an enemy to destroy itself rather than waste precious resources and energies combating it from the outside? But this gambit requires extraordinary skill and subtlety, qualities that are counter-cultural in America! It's almost too easy, you dumb fuck's!

Consider a public that tolerates rewarding robber barons, banksters and other rogues responsible for destroying a nation's economy – it's no secret people. For two reasons these individuals must be held accountable and made to disclose all their nefarious practices; the first reason is they are clearly fraudsters and criminals, the second is they are CLEARLY INCOMPETENT -- how much less competent then, the American public? But please continue along the course set by the most inept leaders and strategists the West has ever known – perfect!

No further information required, just sit back relax and watch the gruesome show, you gibbering idiots! Do you now understand what qualities and skills are required to win wars?

We could have accommodated you from the start but you went ahead and created Bin Laden bogey men, national catastrophes and then attempted (in vain) to sell a "global war" on terror -- which 'globe' is that, you morons? However, if you insist we could accommodate you; it's too easy and you know it!

Watching you idiots clutching at the most PREPOSTEROUS LIES and trying to claw your way out of the hole you so conveniently created is too entertaining a comedy to disturb. Best of British luck!

I'm afraid we won't be 'saving the world' this week.

The Murdochs, saving themselves!

Rudd, trying to save himself

Bush, who couldn't save his life!