Faced with the undeniable and now unavoidable truth of the criminality of the Bush, Blair and Howard governments, what do you suppose are the consequences for these men? People are fined for parking and littering offences but murder and plunder on an international level incurs no penalty it would seem. [The ICC is a puppet court, an institution with zero credibility.] Is the lack of legal and public response surprising? Advice from leading consultants and 'people managers' was/is unanimous; once a decision is acted upon by a government and a nation is committed to a particular course, the people are swept along regardless of compromising evidence released during or after the event.

Such is the reality of crowd control; "the crowd" is a MORON! The historical record is saturated with verification of this unfortunate fact. Therefore, if affectivity were desired the answer would obviously lie somewhere other than involving the moronic masses. The actions of individuals or small groups present as a viable alternative. [History also records the astounding success of small groups impacting entire cultures.]

Offence is a highly personal matter and satisfaction is also a highly personal matter, never allow the mood (or apathy) of the masses to interfere with personal offence, values and (if required) a retaliatory response.

Do bears shit in the woods? Is the last mass murderer of the twentieth century, Henry Kissinger, walking free in the USA? Expect no justice in the land of flagrant hypocrisy, double standards and criminals in government, and certainly do not expect support or 'mobilisation' from the stupor that is the masses.

Warfare today has become a personal and/or micro-group activity. The singular, focused, immediate response is virtually unstoppable. Smaller and 'tighter' units reap huge returns for relatively minimal investments. They are better able to survive and endure, increasing in skill-levels as they persist. Security is guaranteed in singular actions and decreases proportionally as group numbers increase; small numbers are an asset not a disadvantage.

In today's 'fields' of battle traditional guerrilla warfare becomes too large an action - think in terms of a 'thousand cuts' and the philosophy of Sun tzu and Lao tzu. Only fools desire quick results - patience, perseverance and persistence characterise the successful modern warrior. Time is an ally to liberators and an enemy to the enemy.

Weak and vulnerable cultures are easily identified and exploited; the following (unsorted) list may be of some assistance.

- Resorting to lies indicates lack of ability.
- Resorting to brutality indicates lack of skill.

- Inability to endure difficulty indicates weakness preluding defeat.
- The belief that the enemy is an inferior force indicates stupidity.
- The belief that God is on anyone's side indicates dissociation.
- The belief that victory is imminent and inevitable indicates fatigue or feeble mindedness.
- Allowing civilian 'leaders' to command the military in times of battle is a recipe for failure.
- The belief in a 'just war' is ridiculous and indicates a strong susceptibility to 'psyops'.
- The belief that a soldier is anything other than a professional murderer indicates a predisposition to the delusional.
- A lack of moral leadership or ground troops becoming aware that they are fighting for lying and corrupt leaders is a recipe for certain defeat.
- Waging war in an inappropriate field/space/time or the inability to identify an important target.
- Confronting the enemy in a direct engagement when an attack on infrastructure may have yielded greater gains.
- An attack on the Capitalist infrastructure (markets etc) may reap huge benefits, as it is precisely those institutions that finance the actions of the enemy. The economic attack involves misinformation and manipulation of the markets themselves - China recently subverted the world copper price, seize such opportunities and obtain some advantage - utilise the 'slipstream' of others.
- A personal decision to withdraw constructive/productive support from a government while maintaining an outward appearance of support is devastating. Exercising this legal prerogative on a broad scale slowly transforms solid foundations to sand. Chip away at the 'block' and you will not be noticed - never relent - and soon the 'block' becomes rubble. The smallest contrary action has an effect, maintain your assault and endure to the end.

The above list is by no means exhaustive, the reader is at liberty to add to or alter the list as immediate environmental determinants may indicate. We have no officers; we are a single body of mutually cooperative combatants and saboteurs.

We are One.

Footnote:

Remember that it is the adversary who kills, we never resort to violence against flesh and blood. The Left and Right are two sides of the same (violent) Zionist coin - has the 'penny' dropped yet? Fanatics, extremists and the totalitarian Right or Left are the same animal with a different name, they all share a common characteristic - violence - theirs is a legacy of blood and murder. We do not become animals to defeat animals. We are the semiotic terrorists, manipulators of meaning, we run relays of dreams becoming realities. Never underestimate the power of semiotic terrorism - a few cartoons (linear images with a single caption) have a target group in an uproar. Slave ideologies are for slaves - never forget that ideologies are tools of the trade and all have a 'use by' date - subvert and create them as needed.

We are not constrained.

Peace.
