

Reeking in Timor

by nano Sunday, May 28 2006, 7:21am

international / imperialism / opinion/analysis

Did I hear that word again (communist)? The comment/accusation was directed at the Timorese Prime Minister Alkatiri during an Oz 'newscast' - certainly puts an interesting slant on the Timor situation! I was reminded of the emerging independence of the Congo and the short life of its charismatic leader, Patrice Lumumba. The intervention of the CIA and the subsequent assassination of Patrice were entirely 'coincidental' events!

Mari Alkatiri

The Transnationals have been feeding like pigs at the trough of the extremely resource rich nation of the Congo ever since the assassination of Lumumba. The Congo is and has been a borderline failed state since the CIA intervened, chaos and deprivation for the locals but riches for the foreign Corporations. What does the future hold for Timor?

A tiny island state was successfully prised from Indonesia for the purposes of appropriating maritime oil rights. Are we surprised by today's intervention - made necessary by a manufactured crisis resulting in an expected request for military assistance? It is clear THE OCCUPATION HAS BEGUN, American and Australian oil interests, the UN, and the deputy sheriff of the South Pacific, John Howard are only there to help!

The public is lapping up the fabricated news at face value; 'we are really helping the poor little darkies aren't we', are the self-assuring inner thoughts of Howard's racist Australians? Better to leave those things to our fearless leaders, Howard, Downer and Nelson. Meanwhile innocent people are being murdered for the sake of profit and greed.

The situation in Timor was allowed to deteriorate after the USA urged the rebel leader to fight for 'his' rights. The fact that Alkatiri was perceived to be making overtures to Communist States like Cuba and China had nothing to do with it! It is alleged that the 'rebel' leader's wife is in the employ of the USA and acted as a convenient medium in the overall strategy to occupy and consolidate (control resources) under the guise of peace keeping. [A Balkans' lament!]

Military intervention has become an option for a few affluent resource hungry nations. We note time and again that underdeveloped nations that fall victim to horrendous events and appalling circumstances are neglected if there are no resources to exploit. The present intervention in Timor is transparent and so are the circumstances that inflamed the present melee.

Modern history has already identified the forces that opt for military intervention and exploitation, especially those involving oil resources. The popular media (as distinct from the Corporatist mass media) has 'outed' the subversive and surreptitious practices of agencies like the CIA. The veil that once hid the machinations of these sordid murdering groups has been perforated and lifted.

The forces of Capitalism are nothing if not consistent and it is that consistency that identifies the forces behind recent events. Nothing more needs be said except perhaps to seek verification as events unfold. The 'spots' of the Transnational beast do not change.

Prime Minister Alkatiri is the present leader of East Timor and until such time as the people of East Timor are able to determine/confirm their leadership we oppose any outside interference in the affairs of the Sovereign State of East Timor.

Due to Timor's proximity to Oz, the positive side to this story is that we are in the perfect position to offer assistance to those who continue to fight against foreign forces invading a sovereign nation.

Patrice Lumumba

Cleaves Alternative News. <http://cleaves.lingama.net/news/story-223.html>