

Assange, a Paris Hilton with a high IQ

by stylus Tuesday, Dec 21 2010, 8:47pm

international / mass media / commentary

You had us all going for a minute, Julian; the world was briefly mesmerised by the Assange media circus and the hope of justice and real reform. You played the disgruntled, hope-seeking, frustrated public like a violin. Many continue to be fascinated by the spin but a book deal so soon - and perhaps a Hollywood movie contract - defines you as just ANOTHER fame seeking, self-serving 'it's all about ME,' personality - same ol' crap, different wrapper, Paris, oops, I mean, Julian!

'Julian' Hilton

What have you really changed Julian? 'Threatening' - warning in other words, and softening any impact - a Wall St Bank before compromising it is the height of tactical folly; you know how the market works, if you have the 'goods' dump the entire stinking mess in the middle of Wall St for maximum effect, but you knew that didn't you, Julian? Your manoeuvres and machinations remind me of US tactics more each day - same DETECTABLE formula at work; would you care to redeem yourself and really drop a bombshell and possibly make a REAL IMPACT or is performing for the media and seeking fame more important than making a real contribution to humanity, I ask you directly, Julian? Perhaps more time and energy supporting tortured Bradley Manning, but are troubled homosexuals not worth the effort regardless of the capital YOU gained.

Still no clarification on your absurd stance on 9/11, 'Paris,' or the "innocuous" Bilderberg gathering of 'business people' -- who are you, Julian? Remember what we say down here, shit floats, ol'son and if you don't watch yourself you'll be floating with it!

Consider the devastating impact of releasing compromising details on any major Bank suddenly and ANONYMOUSLY, the markets would go crazy! REAL hackers and digital warriors REMAIN anonymous, none of us would ever reveal our identities -- who are YOU, Julian?

<http://tinyurl.com/28jhyrt>

