Welcome to the twenty-first century, welcome to social retrogression and the new barbarism – primitive theological values and barbarism have temporarily stolen the post-modern age. Quite an irony in today's highly advanced society but the reality of barbarism and retrogression are undeniable. The world's most advanced technological nation is a perfect example. America has succumbed to theological ideology and all the bigoted, avaricious, violent values associated with primitive religion and barbarism. A crusader, a mental deficient who fancies himself a 'holy' knight of the Middle Ages battling the forces of 'evil', leads the USA; a literal mental retard and social regressive leads the world's 'leading' nation.

If the reality of George W Bush as President is not sufficient to prove the point, the recent example of America attempting to justify the suicides of three detainees in its illegal detention/torture centre of Guantanamo Bay should furnish ample proof for even the most hardened sceptic or dim witted moron. The official announcement by US authorities regarding these tragic suicides was that the suicides constituted an "act of war"! This statement will no doubt go down in history as the most idiotic convoluted logic ever pronounced by military personnel. The most basic action undertaken in any war is to kill the opponent not oneself.

Imagine two armies facing each other in battle and one army simultaneously shooting themselves in the head as an act of defiant warfare! The absurdity of new American logic is beyond measure. The other 'well considered' statement made to the press by ranking personnel was that these suicides were a "good Public Relations move to draw attention". In the 'new' inverted value system of retrogressive America, 'ceilings become floors'!

When vision, inspiration, creativity, and intelligence are sacrificed to the 'God' of ignorance, violence, avarice and selfishness – chaos, war and mayhem result. When the higher aspects of humanity are sacrificed to the lower, society becomes a living hell. The herd/masses become despondent while the aware, intelligent minorities are forced by circumstance to toe the line. Small solitary voices are occasionally heard warning of dire consequences but the herd cannot respond as their course is determined by the 'herder'; the intelligent minority who designed the means with which the unintelligent rule have retreated to their insular world of small comforts (paltry 'rewards').

When the patients have taken over the asylum and imbeciles are allowed to determine the course of nations, dissenting social sub-groups begin to form; the rational, intelligent and visionary irrepressible aspects of human nature find expression elsewhere and a social foment begins. Whether in small groups or alone people have begun to withdraw their support from perverse institutions and have begun to subvert the forces and discourse that sustains the prevailing social disorder.

Progressive social movements and cultural enlightenments follow every Dark Age. Today, history is compressed, social change occurs at speed. The correcting light that emanates from the higher mind of man is affecting the (social) consciousness of those capable of effecting change – nothing is able to prevent nature establishing its harmony and balance. [I would remind the reader that nature is not dependent on one of its creations (mammals) to achieve its harmonies!]

People are realising that religion has become a social liability. Religions today (particularly Abrahamic derivations) are easily identifiable as destructive social diseases. They may have served primitive societies once but it is obvious they are counter-creative/productive in today's world. Those who profess religious sanction or authority are easily identifiable as the most violent and/or pathological human types. For the good of all and the maintenance of a healthy progressive society all religionists must be incarcerated, isolated and cured of their mental disorders. The welfare of the general public and the health of the community depend on it.

Secularism is the most effective antidote against the plague of religion. The Secular State must never allow itself to be influenced/affected in the slightest regard by the demands of the mentally unstable religionists or by various religious lobby groups masquerading as charity and other 'benign' organisations.

Words are not able to describe the elevating, liberating, exhilaration and joy experienced when religious, political, and other oppressive ideologies are abandoned.

Free yourself, free the world.

We are ONE.
