Performing Russian circus bear growls too late in the day

Russia under gutless, squeaking mouse Putin, allowed itself to be surrounded by Western offensive missile and radar systems. It was CLEAR at the time these moves to slow-choke Russia should have been immediately RESISTED with force -- the cowardly Americans tested and won that move and more including offensive installations on yellow dog China's doorstep.

In view of the combined strength of Russia and China it makes no sense whatsoever that these two superpowers would allow US/NATO forces to CLEARLY compromise their defences unless of course there is a SINGLE underlying controlling factor.

The first evidence of an underlying 'controlling' factor was the abandonment by both Russia and China of close ally Yugoslavia during the Balkan conflict of the 90's -- international law clearly supported the territorial claims of Yugoslavia against the aggressive forces of US/NATO -- China and Russia were fully aware of the legal situation at the time YET both superpowers withdrew (tails between legs) and allowed ILLEGAL open slather intervention by the US/NATO in the Balkans.

So what are we to make of the latest mice squeals from COWARDLY MOSCOW regarding pre-emptive strikes so late in the day? A CROC would be a good estimation?

Any military man knows that a determined show of force with demands to remove threatening systems is the only effective solution that would restore balance and reduce the possibility of war. But we are dealing with monied cabals behind the scenes; perhaps the Asians and Russians may choose instead to target these nefarious cabals and eliminate the problem at its core!

Russia's first duty is to restore stolen sovereign territory to Slavic Serbia and remove all foreign installations from those territories -- the courts have no choice under existing international LAW, notwithstanding the law is meaningless these days, any legal demands would therefore necessary entail strong military support from Russia and China!

It is most amusing that Banker and Corporate elites responsible for all the wars of the 21st century continue to present as sitting ducks in a small pond -- so who are you really trying to kid corrupt POLITICIANS of every hue and nation?

Failure to address the problem would of course result in the masses rising up against the corrupt political class and elite cabals together.

You have been warned -- continue these absurd antics of claims and counter claims without appreciable change at your own risk. The masses are aware and capable. They will soon tire of warring with each other for the benefit of cunning minority elites.
