A new low has been reached by the US film Industry

In its desperate search for new sensationist gimmicks, the US film industry has resorted to the 'golden shower;' a topic usually reserved for lockerroom jokes. Aging actress, Nicole 'no appeal' Kidman, gratuitously pisses in the face of co-star, Zac Efron. No doubt some desperate director will trump that scene with a 'steamer' in someone's mouth. Goodbye America -- in every way, you stink!

No stunt pee: Nicole Kidman really urinated on Zac Efron in movie

by Adam Bub

Nicole Kidman considered that question while making The Paperboy, the film that shocked Cannes Film Festival audiences last week with the now-infamous "peeing" scene, in which her character urinates on Zac Efron's character's face to relieve a jellyfish sting on the beach.

The 44-year-old Oscar winner has revealed just how far she went for authenticity.

"Yes, I did the scene. That was what Lee wanted. It was in the script. And it's pretty out there," she told Deadline. "I mean, I love Zac. He's such a great guy and let me just say I am glad it was him. I feel safe with Zac and hopefully he feels safe with me. Oh my God I can't believe it's all over Twitter. Of course it would be all over Twitter!"

Nicole fought to keep the scene in the film, Paperboy director Lee Daniels (Precious) told US GQ magazine.

"But, when right before I sent it off to Cannes, I called Nicole at three in the morning. I said, 'Nicole, I can't do it, I've gone too far. I can't put that scene in the movie.' She said, 'Lee, you made me pee on Zac Efron, if you don't put that in the movie, you're out of your freakin' mind!'," Lee said.

In the scene, Nic's trailer-trash character Charlotte pushes through a group of girls shouting, "If anyone's gonna pee on him, it's gonna be me!"

The Paperboy has earned Nicole some of the best reviews of her career, although the '60s Deep South crime-thriller itself has garnered mixed reviews. Critics are also buzzing about a scene where Nic's character gets sexually aroused in front of a prisoner in jail (John Cusack), some calling it her "Sharon Stone Basic Instinct" moment.

Nic added that she'd rather do risky films than be "bland". As Deadline points out, she'll be going with a different, er, flow, when she plays Grace Kelly in an upcoming biopic of the Hollywood movie star and Princess of Monaco's life.

*Meanwhile in another desperate grab for popularity, Kenyan born, US president Barack 'child killer' Obama, awards 'former' music legend, Bob Dylan, with the medal of 'freedom' -- you blew it, Bob, big time!

Puppet President Obama awards Bob Dylan Medal Of Freedom

Legendary musician Bob Dylan visited the White House on Tuesday to receive the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor. Dylan released his first album in 1962, and his music had a considerable influence on the civil rights movement. Below, President Barack Obama awards Dylan the prestigious medal.

The president said he found Dylan's music transcendent, claiming it led to his "world opening up, because [Dylan] captured something about this country that was so vital."

Dylan was one of 13 to receive the Medal of Freedom on Tuesday, including former astronaut and Senator John Glenn, former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and former University of Tennessee women's basketball head coach Pat Summitt.
