

Assange case: The French Conquer England a Second Time

In an absurd twist fit for Alice in Supreme Court Land, the decision to extradite Julian Assange to Sweden was made on an interpretation of a FRENCH expression/term -- now that is extraordinary as the case was heard in the UK!

British Judges - LOL!

No doubt the arrogant French, which once feared for their language/culture, are overjoyed that it was THEIR language NOT the dominant English language spoken and written in Britain that decided the outcome in Britain's Highest Court! Furthermore, the clearly 'stacked' bench made their decision on a matter that was not raised or argued during proceedings -- a highly irregular occurrence allowing for lawyers to ask for the case to be reopened:

British legal expert Joshua Rozenberg described the development as "extraordinary".

"It would be very embarrassing if the supreme court felt the need to reopen the case and it's extraordinary, isn't it, that they might have considered something which they gave the parties no opportunity to argue."

The LAW is an ass indeed, especially it seems when the USA desires a certain outcome. 'Upstart' Assange, like alleged leaker Bradley Manning, cannot be seen to have offended the 'mighty' civilian killing, criminal USA, which flouts numerous international laws daily.

President Obama recently awarded the nation's highest civilian decoration to known child killer, former Secretary of State, Madeleine Albright, who infamously made the statement to the WORLD that killing 500,000 innocent Iraqi children, as a result of medical embargos, "was worth it!" The world was sickened by this clearly callous, profit driven, Corporate value system at the time, and still is every time that American sociopath makes the news.

It remains to be seen whether the once proud British legal system, which accounts for many of the legal systems in former colonies today, survives globalist forces and the 'French' language. What a thorough disgrace and screaming injustice the WORLD must suffer while globalists INEPTLY ply their nefarious trade.

It will be a very long time indeed before this case is forgotten.

We also note the very compliant to Washington reactions of shameless bimbo, Australian Attorney General Nicola Roxon, during these proceedings.
