

Gung-ho Politics

Are we able to remain in denial or is reality about to rub our noses in the horrid mess WE have created since allowing Bush, Blair and Howard to lie to the world and commit their respective populations to an illegal, pre-emptive war, or have we overlooked the real prize, the golden opportunity? The age of mass murder with impunity has dawned, what harm our minor exploits in comparison? The 'new' (neo) values of conservatism are undeniably the self-serving impulses of a violent pig at a trough. After centuries of social development and evolution the world stands witness to the re-introduction of barbarism. America and its coalition of willing criminals have returned the world to the ethics of a Swine - gung fuckin' ho! Gimme, gimme, gimme, me, me, me and screw you - brother's keeper, you must be joking!

Blair, Bush and Howard

Speaking for the slow to learn gaggle I am able to confirm we have learnt at last to satisfy our own specific needs without regard to law, others or any other civilised consideration. We learn and follow our leaders; the social contract in all democracies demands it.

We would then mention that the price on the heads of Richard Perle and Paul Wolfowitz is perhaps more than just rumour! The price on the heads of the three wise teachers Bush, Blair and Howard remains -- open season on arseholes and murderers has been declared. Never let it be said we do not follow the example of our leaders. Nations share in the glory, shame or crimes of their elected leaders. Lying, duplicity and murder have become the acceptable means to whatever ends our desires dictate. We are all justified by the example of our porcine leaders.

In view of today's governments and leaders, what is truth/justice? Today, we serve our base instincts to kill, maim and plunder. It's good to be back home again.

Oink!
