

Howard: too familiar and contemptible

The extraordinary Haneef fiasco highlights the increasingly desperate tactics Howard is willing to employ to save the un-savable. Everyone, whether Lib or Lab is sick of Howard. But there's no stopping our home grown lying little war criminal, Johnny! If he takes a greater risk than victimising/scapegoating Haneef, whatever scurrilous action he dreams up, it could well land him and other involved conservatives in the dock or land his entire party so far into the political wilderness that a blacktracker wouldn't be able to find it!

Everyone, including Howard, knows there comes a time when even the dimmest population becomes too familiar; regardless of every other consideration it just don't work no more! If Howard produced Jesus Christ, as his campaign manager, he'd still lose. Yes, it's all over for the grotesque, spineless imp. But don't tell Johnny he's doing too good a job on himself and his party - no one is willing to take the fall for him in the next election so he must press on to oblivion. And so you have it, watching a party in its death throes. Considering all the destruction Howard and his Libs have inflicted both locally and abroad, watching Howard and his party disintegrate, is scant compensation.

Thinking of this pathological heartless excuse for a human and his complicity in the deaths of thousands of innocent human beings makes you want to believe there really is a hell. But unfortunately types like Howard and his neo-con mates capitalise on the superstitions of others so we must take matters into our own hands and deliver him his just desserts. How about 5 years in Guantanamo style detention or perhaps lock him up for wearing running shoes with a 'terrorist' logo. We could always manipulate the Law and do what we want to deprive him of his liberties, yea, why not?

But don't get carried away cos Howard will be attending APEC too! 'O, what fun it is to ride in a one '.....' open slay,' how's it go again?

Sit back relax and enjoy, you don't have to do anything, just relax from a distance!
