

America continues to bully Oz into weapons purchases

The industrial military complex of the USA MUST purge itself of redundant weaponry, as it produces increased amounts of newer systems. Who better to dump outmoded stock onto than the lackey, subservient nation of Australia? The combination of U.S. slave Prime Minister John Howard and Defence Minister, Brendan 'studs' Nelson, offers no resistance to American dictates whatsoever.

Ambassador Robert 'Jethro' McCallum Jr.

Veiled mutterings in the media of "top secret" (how sexy) weapons 'systems' refers to operational software and firmware, which (believe this or not) the Americans refused to supply access codes for – codes are required for fine tuning and other necessary adjustments. Consider the absurdity of buying the latest fighter and not being able to program it for specific operations because – and get this – the U.S. is afraid these 'top security systems' may fall into enemy hands; well bucko, they already have!

We could purchase our hardware and software from other nations whose weapons are equal to and in many instances superior to American versions for Australia-specific needs. A boycott on American weapons purchases would see the U.S. military industrial complex start choking on its own production – America is having some difficulty creating an adequate number of wars globally, but they're working on it – keep your eye on Iran!

What's a few million innocent lives when a military empire is at stake – you murdering black-hearted criminals! Who gives a shit whether Australia's needs are served, just dump the stock onto them – the "man of steel" Prime Minister is fudge in our hands.

Allow me to inform you geniuses, that you have already forced Australia to seek other options from more civilised nations that do not illegally invade other nations and steal their resources. Ignoring the SCREAMING death toll of innocent civilians in these military misadventures is costing us votes. Yep Uncle, it's time to pick up on your game; the neo-cons and Bush have just about destroyed the good ol' USA – or haven't you noticed?

You fuckwits can ill afford to lose vital weapons sales or to withhold operational technologies, ain't dat right, Brigadier?

We hope you enjoy detonating your burgeoning weapons stock, Uncle -- target practice is also recommended.

The present American Ambassador to Australia, Robert 'jethro' McCallum is not an improvement on the previous loud-mouthed idiot. Who or what do you people think you are dealing with, Howard is DEAD in the water or haven't you noticed that either?

STAND UP AUSTRALIA, the Howard cringe is over!
