

A bullet for Obama

by finch Saturday, Jan 5 2008, 8:09pm

international / social/political / opinion/analysis

Who would have thought the dark horse democrat would capture the hearts and minds of so many with his slick speeches and smooth delivery – a good dose of charisma hasn't gone to waste on him either. However, the plutocrats are murmuring; their anointed has been usurped by the people's choice – a certain foreboding now hangs over Obama as he continues to gain in the race to the Presidency. Consider what the rabid right once did to a white Catholic democrat President and his brother. Who imagines they have changed after witnessing their handiwork with Bush and the neo-cons?

Obama

What will the Bankers and Bilderberg group do if a people's candidate should ascend to the Presidency? Obama may even become a representative President if the people deliver him to the Whitehouse. However, his assassination would then be assured!

The rabid right has fought for decades to eliminate all representative government around the globe – take a good look at Murdoch's choice in Australia, the insipid Kevin Rudd, all talk and NO ACTION – just another puppet that does what he's told!

The 'right' will not countenance a democratically elected representative in power for a moment.

Beware, my youthful black Obama. This short piece is what many wish to write but are unable – the gate through which REAL CHANGE may enter has now been opened.

It is better to err on the side of caution than become a statistic. The murmuring of the discontents and plutocrats echoes in the secret chambers.

Be strengthened by their fear and fight a good and prudent fight, Barack Obama.