

Mushroom (cloud) Blues

by yarra Friday, Jan 11 2008, 9:39pm

international / social/political / commentary

What possesses a once moral nation to reverse course and embark on a flagrantly illegal path of military invasion, plunder and murder. The REALITY of American intervention in Iraq is countless civilian deaths, the installation of a puppet government and a declaration that America now has interests it must protect after laying waste to a once viable State -- that is REAL American 'liberty and democracy' in action! Do Americans actually imagine they can murder over one million innocent men, women and children and avoid retribution - it seems so? Americans remain in a state of convenient blindness (denial) to the horrors they have caused -- no price is too high for OTHERS TO PAY for the American way of life!

"Why do 'they' hate us?" I wonder!

It's time to wake up or get woken up, America. There is only one nation invading others and stealing resources today; there is only one developed nation engaged in a civilian holocaust; there is only one nation lost in (pathological) space - a space I cannot even imagine.

Does the U.S. government believe for a moment the world swallows euphemisms as easily as the demented local population - "regime change" is no guise for invasion, wholesale murder and plunder.

What to do with a psychopathic nation, one that believes its criminal actions have been sanctioned by God?

Allow me to enlighten all you 'septic tanks.' Murdering innocent people and stealing their wealth creates enemies - imagine that!

Go home, bake some apple pie, do whatever it is you do that makes you the world's most demented, insular, imbeciles. I recently asked a retired American schoolteacher whether he was aware of Richard Perle's influence on the present administration. My jaw nearly dropped when this American high-school teacher replied he hadn't even heard of Richard Perle - he had no fuckin' idea who Perle was!

What do you suppose happens to a violent, ignorant, rogue nation living in total denial and believing that it has a divine right to do as it pleases?

Faced with tons of illegal drugs flooding into America by land, sea and air would anyone but an American believe the government is able to prevent a nuclear detonation in one of its Capital cities?

The entire world is aware the only nation liable to nuclear attack is America - I jus' can't understand it!

