

America: a moral swampland

international / social/political / commentary

This short paper is written as a response to RAND Corp, Carnegie-Mellon (Institute) and a host of other American 'think' tanks – if the functional qualifier, "think," is at all relevant in America today! We can save you a lot of conjecture and trouble by simply stating it as it is! But then how would you justify your existence?

We have seen scarce little in the way of intelligent leadership or policy come out of America these past few decades, which clearly indicates the failure of U.S. 'think tanks' and other advisory groups. We write to alert and condemn openly the failure of these partisan, sycophantic institutions and the failure of free market capitalism, which has resulted in plutocracy – a system not equipped to govern nations.

When a democratic nation becomes belligerent and departs from the course determined by civilised convention; when local and international laws are openly flouted and a return to the fascism, genocide and barbarism of WWII is evident; when a nation embarks on a course of military expansionism, mass murder and plunder -- sites such as this spontaneously appear. It seems human nature is inherently disinclined to mayhem, murder and chaos!

Bin Laden, Dracula or other phantoms of the American mind have nothing whatsoever to do with it; we suggest you trace millions of years of human evolution and attempt to discover why it is most people prefer peace and harmony to bloodshed and madness. We are content to accept the redeeming characteristics of human nature and believe they will overcome the likes of you/Bush/Cheney and other criminals responsible for plunging the world into chaos!

There are no mysteries to your behaviour, the simple rule of inverse polarities applies, for example; a murderer views anyone who would thwart his activities as enemy, that simple! No need to shrink-wrap palettes of cash and ship them half way across the world for payment – we do it for free! The 'wire' and haemorrhaging banks supply more than enough for our needs. Yes indeed, it was you who outsourced yourselves into our laps, we didn't lift a finger, your greed propelled you and compromised your entire financial system – have you determined yet the means by which you have been destroyed?

It amuses us to read all your fantastic reports, some of which bear some relation to reality however, most are expressions of your incompetence and limitations. It is true the milieux are populated with many 'recovering academics' and other specialists, none of whom have any religious affiliation whatsoever. We do, however, appreciate YOUR constraints and YOUR need for a bogeyman to frighten an uninformed, fearful and astoundingly ignorant population. However, you have unintentionally imprisoned yourselves in your own fabrications and criminal orchestrations – you should have been aware of the cost of mass deception strategies.

Yours is an after-the-fact analysis/vocation, which carries within it immediate obsolescence; ours is spontaneous expression of the creative process, in other words we innovate and initiate while you deal in effects and results -- we lead, you follow! Another factor in your defeat -- did I omit to mention you have already been utterly vanquished, you are an after thought, so to speak?

Enough for now; nevertheless, live in the assurance that you will not succeed. We will see you ALL tried for you crimes against humanity, did you think for a moment your crimes would go unpunished? The monstrous lies and murderous hoaxes you perpetrated on your own people will be broadcast from every rooftop, be assured!

Good luck Uncle!
