

Rudd, Keelty, Haneef and the Banks

by Kingfisher Wednesday, Jan 16 2008, 7:21am

national / social/political / commentary

Australians remember the Indian doctor victimised by John 'racist' Howard and Mick 'drunken dropkick' Keelty, for purely political purposes. Today, the Rudd government did not oppose moves by the courts to re-instate Dr. Haneef's working visa; however, the drunken, incompetent, AFP Chief, Keelty, in an attempt to save whatever is left of his tattered reputation and probably his last gesture of mindlessness prior to entering a clinic for substance abuse - yes, Mick, the whole country knows - continues to doggedly pursue the Indian doctor in view of the fact the UK authorities have indicated that no evidence exists to incriminate Dr. Haneef. Perhaps scheduling Keelty would be the most appropriate course of action the government could take at this stage!

Senior bureaucratic incompetence notwithstanding, Dr Haneef is owed a very large apology and compensation for the trauma he has suffered at the hands of one of Australia's leading racist embarrassments, John 'aluminium tubing' Howard, also known for his slavish servility to George W Bush, the most incompetent U.S. president who ever lived! There is also the matter of war crimes that hangs over the heads of these two puppet leaders but that is another issue.

Numerous factors compromise Australia in relation to the Haneef case; all Australia feels the pinch when confronted with the colonial racism resurrected by John Howard. Japanese pro-whaling interests were quick to cite Australian RACISM in a video launched to compromise the nation - 'how does that feel?' Isn't it about time we saw some decisive action from Kevin 'timid little turd' Rudd? Put the entire issue to rest, Kevin; re-instate Haneef and expose the obvious collusion between former Immigration Minister, Andrews, AFP Chief, Keelty, and their former boss, lying coward, Howard?

Rudd seems to think that winning an election is all that is required of him in the job of PM. 'I'm the PM' he tells himself every morning while shaving, surely the country should be able to run itself with me as its IMPOTENT figurehead! Not so, Kevin, pull your thumb out of your arse and get moving or hand the reins to someone who can lead DECISIVELY, WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOUR!

Rudd and his fellow Queenslander, Treasurer Wayne Swan, have already been backfooted by the Banks. Instead of government applying pressure on bank incompetence the banks have the government scrambling over fiscal policy, nice distraction but the RESPONSIBILITY REMAINS WITH THE BANKS! The colluding banks are attempting to recover their losses by increasing debt burdens on the public. The banks MUST be forced to justify all rate increases, fee structures and the outrageous salaries (in the tens of millions) of bank executives, who are clearly overpaid. That is what a housewife would do, Kevin, why can't you?

Bloody gutless Queenslanders haven't got what it takes to run a nation. Who is running this country, Kevin, you, as the peoples representative, or the banks who have just exhibited their incompetence to the entire world? Do YOUR JOB, Kevin - LEAD!

The banks are obliged to accept responsibility for their losses and TRADE THEIR WAY OUT OF TROUBLE, do your jobs like we do, you bludging bastards! But the Banks have been spoilt by deregulation; they now instinctively turn to parasitic remedies – just load it all onto the dumb public!

If it becomes necessary to teach the banks how to trade again, by applying regulatory measures – THEN SO BE IT! The present situation is no longer viable.

How much can a Koala bear, Kevin? Threaten to regulate the banks if they continue to evade responsibility for THEIR LOSSES – what a hide! When we fail in our endeavours we accept responsibility and ‘take it on the chin,’ when banks fail they expect the public to bear the responsibility AND COSTS – well, we all know what they can do with that logic!

Start with the Haneef affair, Kevin, ‘retire’ Keelty and expedite the inquiry into Liberal government collusion. Give the Corporate sector a ‘taste’ of what to expect Kevin, then nail them!

‘I love a sunburnt country
A land of gutless leaders ..’

Prove otherwise, I would dearly love to be proven wrong, Kevin!

Cleaves Alternative News. <http://cleaves.lingama.net/news/story-880.html>