

Germany and Israel form new alliance

Fresh from its very active role in the destruction of Yugoslavia and its involvement with rebel forces in the Serbian province of Kosovo, Germany now pipes a very familiar tune in the Middle East. In what appears to be a very odd historical twist, fascist Germany now pledges allegiance to Nazi Israel - but is anyone really surprised?

"Threats to which the Israeli State is exposed are also threats to us ... we want to show clearly that Israel's right to exist is a permanent part of German foreign policy," the German Chancellor stated yesterday. Average Germans are more surprised than most at Merkel's statement! German citizens fail to make the connection between Western Europe and the Middle East, notwithstanding that memories of soap and lampshades continue to haunt the German people.

Merkel's odd behaviour may be an expression of guilt but that is highly unlikely. Germany's support of Israel may be a case of reversed 'Stockholm syndrome' but the truth is much simpler.

Geopolitics has nothing to do with it; it's a matter of consolidation, the new ultra-right (fascist if you like) alliance of nations led by the USA.

Israel is currently on the threshold of war with Lebanon/Hezbollah and of course Iran must be prevented from supporting its ally - the US meanwhile waits eagerly in the wings hoping that it will be given an opportunity to intervene militarily and bomb Iran.

Israel needs little urging to engage in the killing of civilians, in this pursuit it is expert! The German-Israeli connection is beginning to make sense when a broader view is taken. 'You lot deal with Lebanon/Hezbollah while we deal with Iran,' one can almost hear the US administration mumble - the stage has been set for a while.

However, in their arrogance Western forces are forgetting China and Russia! Perhaps the recent violent and provocative demonstrations by Tibetans around the globe are beginning to make sense to the slow learning Chinese. The recent visit to America by the Dalai Fraud to discuss tactics with Bush should now make sense to even the dimmest Chinese analyst. The reticence of China and Russia to support their mutual ally in the Balkans is rightly interpreted by the West as WEAKNESS. The consequences for China are clear, Tibetan demonstrators, urged by their leader, aim to compromise the Chinese government just prior to the Olympics - 'face' is everything to the Chinese!

America now utilises the services of his 'Holiness' the Dalai Fraud to great advantage; meanwhile Russia and China continue to be surrounded by an ever-expanding NATO!

A very foolish and costly thing it is not to show support for Serbia in defence of its territories!

Angela Merkel and "peace envoy" Tony Blair are to arrange a Middle East security conference in Berlin after Merkel's visit to Israel. Calling Blair a "peace envoy" is almost as ludicrous as calling the Dalai Fraud 'his Holiness;' both men are the lowest type of political manipulator.

Western political machinations have become completely transparent today.

Regardless of the position Russia and China take, the wildcard that threatens to tip the scales is Serbia -- there is no way Serbs will tolerate the attempted theft of Kosovo.

Good luck, Tony and Angela; world leaders meeting together in one location presents an interesting opportunity for some!
